PRINCIPLES OF DATA PROCESSING

1. Lawfulness, Fairness, and Transparency

The enterprise processes personal data lawfully, fairly, and in a manner that is transparent to the data subject (lawfulness, fairness, and transparency).

2. Purpose Limitation

The enterprise collects personal data only for specified, explicit, and legitimate purposes and does not process it in a manner that is incompatible with those purposes (purpose limitation).

3. Data Minimization

The enterprise ensures that data processing is adequate, relevant, and limited to what is necessary for the purposes for which it is processed (data minimization). Consequently, the enterprise does not collect or store more data than is strictly necessary to achieve the purpose of processing.

4. Accuracy

The enterprise ensures that personal data is accurate and kept up to date. It takes all reasonable measures to promptly delete or correct inaccurate personal data in relation to the purposes of processing (accuracy).

5. Storage Limitation

The enterprise stores personal data in a form that permits identification of data subjects only for as long as necessary to fulfill the purposes of processing, considering legal retention obligations (storage limitation).

6. Integrity and Confidentiality

The enterprise implements appropriate technical and organizational measures to ensure the security of personal data, protecting it from unauthorized or unlawful processing, accidental loss, destruction, or damage (integrity and confidentiality).

7. Accountability

The enterprise is responsible for ensuring compliance with the above principles and must be able to demonstrate such compliance (accountability). To this end, the enterprise enforces this internal policy continuously, regularly reviews its data processing practices, and modifies or supplements them as necessary. The enterprise maintains documentation to demonstrate compliance with legal obligations.

8. Privacy by Design

This principle advocates for a proactive approach to data protection. It requires the Data Controller, both when determining the means of processing and during processing itself, to implement appropriate technical and organizational measures—such as pseudonymization—to effectively enforce the principles, fulfill obligations, and integrate legal safeguards. These measures are systematically and thoroughly documented. In practice, this approach is supported by employee training, raising awareness of data protection, and conducting impact assessments, risk analyses, and legitimate interest assessments when introducing or regularly reviewing data processing activities.

4. Use of "Google Ads" Conversion Tracking

The data controller uses the online advertising program "Google Ads" and, within its framework, utilizes Google's conversion tracking service. Google Conversion Tracking is an analytics service provided by Google Inc. (1600 Amphitheatre Parkway, Mountain View, CA 94043, USA; "Google").

When a user accesses a website via a Google advertisement, a cookie necessary for conversion tracking is placed on their computer. These cookies have a limited validity period and do not contain any personal data, meaning the user cannot be identified through them.

When the User browses certain pages of the website and the cookie has not yet expired, both Google and the data controller can see that the User has clicked on the advertisement. However, individual users cannot be identified from the aggregate data, meaning no personal data processing takes place.

Each Google Ads customer receives a different cookie, so tracking across the websites of different Ads customers is not possible.

The information obtained through conversion tracking cookies is used to generate conversion statistics for Ads customers who have opted for conversion tracking. This allows customers to see the number of users who clicked on their advertisement and were redirected to a page with a conversion tracking tag. However, they do not receive any information that could be used to identify individual users.

If you do not wish to participate in conversion tracking, you can opt out by disabling the installation of cookies in your browser settings. In this case, you will not be included in the conversion tracking statistics.

5. Use of "Google Analytics"

Jet'n'Fly Limited Liability Company uses Google Analytics on its websites, a web analytics service provided by Google Inc. ("Google"). Google Analytics utilizes "cookies," which are text files stored on your computer to help analyze how users interact with the website. These cookies enable the collection of data regarding website usage, which is then processed to generate analytical reports.

The information generated by cookies regarding the user's interaction with the website is typically transmitted to and stored on a Google server in the USA. However, with IP anonymization enabled on the website, Google shortens the user's IP address within the member states of the European Union or other states party to the European Economic Area Agreement before storing it. (<https://support.google.com/analytics/answer/2763052?hl=en>)

The full IP address is only transmitted to and shortened on Google's servers in the USA in exceptional cases. On behalf of the website operator, Google will use this information to analyze how the user interacts with the website, generate reports on website activity for the operator, and provide other services related to website and internet usage.

Within Google Analytics, the IP address transmitted by the user's browser is not combined with other data from Google. Users can prevent cookies from being stored by adjusting their browser settings; however, please note that in this case, some features of the website may not function fully. Additionally, users can prevent Google from collecting and processing data related to their website usage (including the IP address) by downloading and installing the browser plugin available at the following link.
